BONK Price Skyrockets After Upbit Listing

Earlier on November 20, South Korea's largest cryptocurrency exchange, Upbit, announced the launch of BONK's Korean Won trading market. This listing is expected to significantly boost trading volumes for this meme coin, further propelling its price upwards.

It is worth noting that Upbit has specified that deposits and withdrawals for BONK will only be supported through the guided network (BONK-Solana). Given the Korean crypto investors' greater interest in meme coins and altcoins, this development could potentially benefit the entire BONK community.

Intriguingly, this comes at a time when Upbit is facing scrutiny over KYC violations. The Financial Intelligence Unit (FIU) has identified more than 500,000 instances of inadequate customer verification by Upbit.

The recent surge in BONK's price signifies a robust breakthrough from its previous highs. Analysts anticipate another 100% rally, potentially pushing the coin's market capitalization to pass $10 billion.

Currently, BONK ranks fourth among the top meme coins. However, its trajectory may see it challenging the likes of Pepe Coin (PEPE) in the future.

Bonk (BONK) Price Performance

At the beginning of November, the price of BONK gradually increased but lagged behind its fellow meme coins, Dogecoin and PEPE. Specifically, while PEPE reached its all-time high on November 13th, BONK was still trading at over 20% below its own record price.

Nonetheless, last week, the price of BONK experienced a notable surge, breaking out of a long-standing symmetrical triangle pattern. This upward momentum persisted into this week, ultimately culminating in a new all-time high price for BONK today, on November 20th.

Bonk (BONK) Price Analysis

The weekly time frame chart reveals that BONK broke out from a long-term symmetrical triangle last week, creating a significant bullish candlestick. This breakthrough allowed the price to surpass the horizontal resistance area of $0.000034, which had persisted since March and represented the final obstacle before reaching the all-time high.

The BONK breakout culminated with a new all-time high price of $0.000060 on Nov. 19. A breakout that travels the entire triangle's height would take the price to $0.000112.

Technical indicators are bullish. The Relative Strength Index (RSI) is increasing and is above 50, while the Moving Average Convergence/Divergence (MACD) has made a bullish cross and is positive.

Despite the RSI being in overbought territory, there has been no indication of bearish divergence as of yet.

In conclusion, the weekly time frame readings are positive, suggesting that the upward trajectory of the BONK price is likely to continue.
