Fed Gov Cook Hints At Rate Cut: Bitcoin Bullish Rally Is Coming?

Original:

Federal Reserve Governor Lisa Cook said although soft landings in economies after bouts of high inflation are rare, that's what she is predicting for the US as inflation cools with little damage to the labor market.

"My baseline forecast (and that of many outside observers) is that inflation will continue to move toward target over time, without much further rise in unemployment," Cook said Thursday in prepared remarks to the Australian Conference of Economists in Adelaide.

Traders and Wall Street banks are pricing in a 25 bps rate cut in September. Also, CME FedWatch shows a rise in probability to 70%, from 46% a month ago, for a 25 bps rate cut on September 18. The data indicates two rate cuts this year.

Bitcoin Bullish Rally is Coming?

Over the past week, BTC has witnessed sluggish development due to the German government selloff impact. However, there are several factors indicating that Bitcoin is bottoming out and market participants have already started buying.

At this week, Spot Bitcoin ETFs in the U.S. continue to record inflows, with more than $800 million net inflow recorded in the last four days. According to CoinGape, several traditional investment firms such as Fiduciary Alliance are pouring money into ETFs such as BlackRock Bitcoin ETF and GBTC.

Notably, CoinShares reported that institutional investors across the world have started buying Bitcoin and financial expert Robert Kiyosaki urged people to buy more BTC and gold as traditional investors have also started buying.

Although German government (Saxony) offloaded huge amounts of Bitcoin, this also gives investors buy the dip opportunity. Currently, BTC bull sentiment remains strong. Change in monetary policy to start rate cuts is expected to trigger a major rally in stock markets and Bitcoin price. Traders expect BTC price to cross above $60,000 in case of a favorable CPI release.

“We anticipated that a rate cut rally could push Bitcoin near $60,000. Yesterday, Bitcoin rallied to $59,350 due to short covering ahead of the CPI, fulfilling our rally expectations,” said 10x Research CEO Markus Thielen.

It is worth mentioning that the Bitcoin Fear and Greed Index, which gauges the current investor sentiment, could also indicate that the asset’s price is gearing up for a rally. The metric has recently entered “fear” territory, which is generally interpreted as a potential “buying opportunity.” When the index plunges so low, it could suggest that the market is oversold, while the price might have reached its local bottom.

Bitcoin (BTC) Price prediction

Influenced by factors like Mt. Gox repayments and German government’s decision to offload several hundred million worth of BTC , the past one month has been rather disappointing for the primary cryptocurrency Bitcoin, whose price slumped by around 15%. However, due to BTC’s strong fundamentals and several favorable factors, Bitcoin’s price dip is seen as temporary, with predictions of a rally to $100,000.

Notably, BTC has recovered some of its losses in the past few days and is currently trading at approximately $58,800. Numerous analysts and industry participants remained unfazed by the latest dip, suggesting a fresh bull run could be just around the corner.

With optimism among the market participants about Bitcoin’s recovery, a Bitcoin bullish rally can be expected. It is predicted that Bitcoin will spike to $100,000 by the end of 2024. There is a large chance that BTC price could soar past $1 million between 2025 and 2030 under a bullish circumstance.
