As Shiba Inu is in the decline stage, one of the most important questions is, are investors interested in this gambling?

2022 will not develop as predicted for cryptocurrencies. The cryptocurrency market is in a downward phase, especially cryptocurrencies such as Shiba Inu. Shiba Inu is the reason for the large proportion of cryptocurrency investors in today's market. In 2021, after issuing a price increase of 50000,00%, the growth rate of the currency was shocking, which attracted many investors.

The coin has even made initial investors who even have Shib tokens worth $10 super rich. In the case of cryptocurrency collapse, some cryptocurrencies are losing their luster. Shiba Inu is one such example. It was once one of the top ten digital tokens, but now it is trying to maintain its position in the top 15. Now, as it is in the decline stage, one of the most important questions is, are investors interested in this gamble?

Shiba Inu Faces Obstacles

Although 2021 is a breakthrough year for the revenue of cryptocurrency, it has not completely improved the mainstream adoption. The measure of the future success of tokens like Shiba Inu is whether enterprises are willing to accept it as a means of payment, which should promote consumers to use it. For businesses that need predictable cash flow, a value that rises by millions of percentage points and then loses more than half of its currency in a year is not a friend. This triggered a chain reaction; If enterprises do not accept Chivas, consumers have no reason to own it, except as a speculative bet.

In addition, the pattern of the cryptocurrency industry is changing. As the US government and its regulators try to implement the new rules, its decentralized and unregulated nature that attracts many investors will soon disappear. Under the new legislation proposed for 2023, investors may be taxed on cryptocurrency gains every time they sell, exchange or spend their tokens. And brokers will be required to report such data to the IRS, unveiling valuable anonymity.

Like many speculative asset classes, regulators are trying to minimize the losses of unsuspecting retail investors. The securities and Exchange Commission is studying whether most cryptocurrency assets should be classified as securities, which will force exchanges to meet strict audit and compliance standards to prevent evil activities and market manipulation.

The Era of Shiba Inu is Coming to An End

The Shiba Inu era is coming to an end, and all the signs are there. A large number of well performing coins, such as bitgert, are accelerating the collapse process. It should be noted that bitgert and centcex are practical items, while Shiba Inu is a memory currency. This is the biggest difference between bitgert and other coins and Shib.

The commemorative coins are not practical, and there are no specific projects being built by the team. The demand for the currency was caused by speculation in the large-scale market. This is what happened to Shiba Inu. Now, the hype is dead and the currency is collapsing. Unless the Shiba Inu team solves these problems, the era of the once most powerful coin is coming to an end. But what makes cryptocurrency investors not give up this cryptocurrency?

Shibaburn Portal for Cryptocurrency Investors

With the launch of the official shibaswap burn portal, Shiba army will take a long time to make the price reach US $1. This new portal is mainly to provide a Web3 wallet for cryptocurrency investors to burn Shiba Inu tokens and make money through passive income incentives for effective participation. It is reported that the growth rate of this Shiba Inu combustion mechanism is 347.35%.

The shibaburn portal will send tokens and unsaved details to the remote cryptocurrency wallet address. Cryptocurrency investors or Shiba troops cannot retrieve data in the near future. The portal is determined to encourage cryptocurrency investors to burn cryptocurrency and make the cryptocurrency market scarce. Therefore, demand will increase and prices will automatically increase to drive the profits of cryptocurrency wallets.
